

A.J. Maddock, Machine Shop and Foundry

It is rare indeed in towns the size of ours to find a well equipped machine shop, together with foundry able to turn out iron and brass castings. A.J. Maddock is the proprietor of such an industry in Gaylord and since starting here in 1901 has built up a splendid business.

Mr. Maddock does all kinds of repair work and when any disabled machinery leaves his plant it is practically as good as new. He does a big business in repairs for mills in this vicinity, the owners have come to know through experience that all work turned out by him is satisfactory.

Immense snow rollers are made by him on order, and he also manufactures plows to order, which are in every respect high grade.

The casting capacity of his shop is 3,500 pounds of gray iron per day and 700 pounds of brass.

Mr. Maddock is an Englishman by birth, but came from Boston to Gaylord and since his residence here has made many friends who wish him a prolonged and successful business career.
