

Mrs. L. E. Sexton, GAYLORD BAZAAR

Mrs. L. E. Sexton has demonstrated beyond a doubt that in many lines of merchandising woman is the equal of man. For a number of years she has successfully conducted the Gaylord Bazaar, an establishment comprising a varied assortment of goods, including fancy crockery, chinaware, furnishings, novelties, bric-a-brac, table and pocket cutlery, books, and the thousand and one things which tend to make up a complete bazaar stock. Her store is a popular trading place, and as every article is sold solely on its merits the customer realizes he is receiving full money value on every purchase made at this store.
