

OTSEGO AVENUE has undergone a great deal of change in its first 100 years. But some things from days gone by remain with us. The steeple of St. Mary Church in the background brings this picture into perspective for a lot of us not around in 1900. The building at far left is where Gaylord's first post office was located, directly across the street from where the Chamber of Commerce now sits. On the northwest corner of Otsego and Main is what was known as the Demarest Block, named for the owner. It is now occupied by Pickwick imports.

Carothers Excavating: specialization

GAYLORD — Founded in 1973 by owner-manager James Carothers, Carothers Excavating serves north central Michigan as a qualified and experienced licensed excavating firm. Carothers Excavating specializes in road building, basement construction, septic installation and planning services.

With main offices in the Gaylord Air Industrial Park, the firm has recently added snow plowing to the list of services it provides.
